

Ultimate Custom Show, Manchester Central – 10th & 11th January 2015

The old bike show had been in slow decline for a few years now, each event having fewer stands and less variety. The major manufacturers stopped coming a couple of years back, with the dealers trying not very successfully to fill the void. Last year there were whole tracts at the back of the hall full of nothing but space. The result was a lot of disgruntled punters. So, I was hopeful that a change of format might reinvigorate the event. Many bikers will have given the show a miss, thinking that it would mainly be about cars and trucks. Well, they were right.

There were a few bikes on display but there was no getting away from the fact that this show was about four wheels not two. Yet again, however, there were too few exhibits, all widely spaced out in an attempt to make the hall look full. And it was £18 to get in – on what planet is that value? Better save your money for Event City in March.

The award for the best looking custom at the show was, by a mile .... Grobbo's chopper on the MAG stand! It was surrounded by an admiring audience all weekend, which is more than be said for most of the exhibits. We saw quite a few new faces at the MAG stall, which is always gratifying – it's all about getting the message out after all! Thanks to all you "old timers" who stuck your head in to say hello as well.

Looking ahead to next month - NW Fred Hill Run Sunday 8th February

Jeez, where does the time go? Next month will see the 11th NW Fred Hill Run at the Sir Charles Napier pub on Tontine Street in Blackburn. It goes without saying that it don't seem like twelve months since the last 'un!

On the face of it, the run is just about MAG members getting together, all over the UK, to remember the death of a MAG activist. Fred's story is well known (and just a Google away if you don't know it). But it's more than that. The annual Fred Hill commemoration is a chance for all MAG members to pause and reflect on what we all believe in and what the organization is all about: the freedom to make our own decisions about your own safety. It's a never ending battle, and one that we're by no means sure to win. Take an article in this Sunday's paper:

"Speed limiters may be made compulsory in new cars

...research for the European Commission has backed their introduction on safety grounds...it could be included in legislation expected to be drawn up within the year...the devices could be introduced as an option on cars before being made mandatory"

MAG has consistently argued against such devices on principle, and pointed out how dangerous they would be on bikes, but we're dealing with a different mind-set here. To the legislators in Europe, statistics are all. Quantity of life matters more than quality of life. It's as if they don't live in the same world as us. Or the same world as Fred Hill.

The Charles Napier will be open at noon for a brew and we'll set off at 1pm. The length of the run will, as ever, depend on the mood of the English weather and as usual there'll be some complimentary butties laid on afterwards. See you there.
