

The 7th North West MAG Fred Hill Run

"As the gales brought down the rain from the Pennines, sixty stalwarts gathered at the Charles Napier in Blackburn for the seventh North-West Fred Hill Memorial Run. Despite the weather, the mood was buoyant.

It might not have been the best of days for a ride out but no-one was in any doubt that they were in the right place, and for the right reasons. The ceremony at Blackburn Cathedral lacked only the usual contribution of Bishop Michael, who was sadly too ill to attend (get well soon Bish).

The weather worsening, a show of hands in favour of the rest of the run yielded only one (Gaz from Cannibals MCC), so it was straight back to the pub for something to eat. We're a sensible bunch up here in Lancashire!"

Bill Green, Red Rose MAG Rep